Up Close and Pers

Eight designers opened up their closets—and mingled their vintage pieces with modern silhouettes, dresses, and knitwear to see their signatures echoed and reformed. What lasts? What's new? Creativity—and the art of dressing. Photographed by Ethan James Green.

Madeline Swanson

As an accessories editor, Swanson has a keen eye for all things mixable and matchable. Take this pleated wool skirt, for instance—picked up for $7 at a now-defunct vintage shop—which quickly became a mainstay of her fall and winter wardrobes. "Since the fabric is not too bulky, I like to play around with layering cotton turtlenecks, pristine vintage sweaters, and most
